

FOUR INSTANTLY KILLED.

TERRIBLE EXPLOSION IN A WILLIAMS-BURG FACTORY.

George Campbell's Rubber Cement Factory Blows to Pieces, and the Owners, His Son, and Two Others Killed—Supposed to Have Been Caused by Naphtha.

An explosion in George W. Campbell's rubber cement factory, located on the corner of the 211 West 10th street, Williamsburg, late yesterday afternoon resulted in the death of the proprietor, his fourteen-year-old son, Charles; Joseph Kneeb, the engineer, and John D. McCutcheon, a laborer. The factory was a one-and-a-half-story frame building standing back of the main factory, in which the Campbell family lived with his wife and three children, Hannah, Charles, and John, aged respectively 10, 14, and 9 years. The factory was on the first floor where were located the engine and boiler, the varnish room, and several machines. Although the making of rubber cement is a dangerous occupation, they had no special precautions taken. The Campbell family had been in the business for many years. Campbell had McCutcheon helping him in the place while Kneeb looked after the machinery. Since the close of school for the summer vacation young Charles has assisted his father.

Miss Mrs. Campbell, Campbell's wife, was sitting on the porch of her home sewing about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, her son appeared in the factory door, which faced the rear of the dwelling, and told his mother that he had been working all the afternoon grinding rubber cement with benzine into jelly. The boy told his mother that he didn't know what was the matter, but the smell of the benzine made him sick, something which had never happened to him before. I do all that after the boy finished speaking to his mother he went back into the factory and closed the door. A few minutes later, when the boy came back, he was laughing and shouting something. A little while later he heard him call to the engineer: "Joe, what is the matter? the machinery has stopped." The next moment there was an explosion and the entire roof of the factory was blown off and dropped into the street, and the factory was a mass of ruins. The explosion was so violent that the boy was killed instantly, and the mother and two others were killed. The father was killed by the explosion. RETRACTS HIS CONFESSION.

Gallagher Says Now that Dempsey is Guilty—Expected a Pardon.

Pittsford, N. Y., July 20.—Patrick Gallagher requested the presence of Warden Wright at his cell in the penitentiary this afternoon. Gallagher said to him:

"Warden, I have been in here all night, and wish to say to you now that the confession made by me yesterday was all a hatched-up scheme, and that I was dragged into it. I wish now to retract everything that was said in that confession, and wish to say that the foundation of the whole thing was a lie. I am interested, and I will decline to sign the confession."

Warden Wright immediately notified District Attorney Burleigh and Attorney Porter by telephone, and they hurried to the penitentiary.

After a three hours' talk with Gallagher, District Attorney Burleigh came out and said that Gallagher had declared under oath that every statement he made yesterday was absolutely false, and that he, Dempsey, Beatty, and Davidson are guilty as indicted. He broke down and cried like a child. Warden Wright says Gallagher had a big bundle of manuscript, which he took as the foundation of his confession, and which he was to sign. Gallagher was to sign the manuscript, which was prepared for him on the outside of the penitentiary, and which he made yesterday.

It is interesting to note that Gallagher was sitting on the porch of his home sewing about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, her son appeared in the factory door, which faced the rear of the dwelling, and told his mother that he had been working all the afternoon grinding rubber cement with benzine into jelly. The boy told his mother that he didn't know what was the matter, but the smell of the benzine made him sick, something which had never happened to him before. KANSAS MINERS FIGHTING.

TOUR OF THE STRIKERS WOUNDED IN A FIGHT WITH NEW MEN.

The Operators Building Stockades Within Which Their Men May Work—1,000 Miners on Their Way from Alabama—Strikers Say They Won't Let Them Mine.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 20.—Four striking miners were wounded in an attack on the new men brought in by the operators at Weir City, Kan., this afternoon. They are Henry Beigh, a man known as "the Swede," John Herling and a boy. A French Indian woman, who was cheering the men on, was struck in the thigh by a stray bullet. Adit-Gen. Arts has ordered two companies of militia from Topeka and Wichita to the scene. The operators are making every effort to resist the men who are taking their women, are organizing to keep out the 1,000 negroes on their way to Weir City from Alabama.

To-day's difficulty originated in this way: About noon 300 striking miners went to the mine at Weir City. The strikers refused to quit work, and the operators refused to let them work. The strikers were making every effort to resist the men who are taking their women, are organizing to keep out the 1,000 negroes on their way to Weir City from Alabama.

The strikers, behind which the coal operators expect to put men to work in the near future, are fighting a battle with the new men. HELLO GIRLS HAD TO RUN.

"CENTRAL" IN EIGHTEENTH STREET BURNED OUT AGAIN.

No Telephoning Between Fourteenth Street and Twenty-ninth—Speakers Dodge Failing Wires—The Cruiser New York's Service of Plots in Temporary Peril—The New Broadway Cable Cars Blocked.

The Eighteenth street central telephone office was crippled by a fire early last evening and the 2,000 subscribers dependent on it for communication used various languages in trying to raise "Central," but had to give up. The office was a long room on the top floor of the five-story building on the south-west corner of Eighteenth street and Broadway, comprising 807, 808, and 821 Broadway, and 12, 14, and 16 East Eighteenth street. The Whiting Manufacturing Company, silver-smiths, and C. H. Ditson & Co., have big stores on the ground floor, and the rest of the building was occupied by manufacturing firms. The telephone office was on the Broadway front.

The building was started on fire by a fire on the ground floor, and the fire spread to the upper floors. The fire was so violent that the building was completely destroyed. BIG FIRE IN LONG ISLAND CITY.

One Block Destroyed at 1:30 O'clock and the Flames Spreading.

At 1:30 o'clock this morning fire started in a room at the rear of the Fifth Avenue Hotel and Jackson and Vernon avenues, Long Island City.

In the block are St. Mary's new Catholic Church, valued at $200,000; the parish house, the new parochial school, and a number of business houses.

The flames jumped across Fifth street to a room in the rear of the hotel at the corner of Vernon avenue. Then the fire caught hold of the flat house in the rear of those on Fifth street.

There was no water to be had, and the greatest excitement prevailed, as the fire burned with constantly increasing fury. Help came from Newtown Creek, but at 1 o'clock the fire was still rapidly spreading. At 1:30 the church and all the buildings in the block had been destroyed, and the fire continued to spread to the other blocks in the vicinity.

The Rev. John McGuire and the Rev. William J. Doherty are the priests of St. Mary's.
